The readers of THE CAUCASIAN will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient streagth, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure.

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR.

HOW THINGS LOOK FROM OUR STAND POINT.

The Opinion of The Editor and the Opinion of Others which we Can Endorse on the Various Topics of the Day.

OUR POSITION.

The Man Whom This Paper Will Support for Congress.

From time to time some deserving reference or compliment has appeared in this paper concerning this or that man whose name is before the people for public position on public trust. This has aroused numerous enquiries as to whom we would support. To settle this matter, especially with reference to Congress, we will state that in the coming contest, we will be guided by no personal preference. We believe that the man whom the people should send to represent this and every other agricultural district should be a man not only of undoubted integrity, great information and ability, but also one who believes in and will most earnestly and zealously advocate the following measures :

First, A change in the principle and amount of taxation—a change that will lower taxes not only to revenue basis, but even lower and make up the deficiency by a graduated income tax. Because a system that taxes that what people eat, wear and use otherwise is unjust, in that it bears more heavily upon the poor than rich.

Second, The free and unlimited coinage of silver.

Third, The removing of the tax on State Banks.

Fourth, The abolition of the present National Banking System and the substitution of a better system—the establishment of a system that will take the control of the money of the country out of the hands of the few—a system that will give us an elastic or flexible currency, one that will contract or expand exactly with the annual products of the country, thereby furnishing a just and fixed measure of their value. The Sub-Treasury bill comes nearer effecting this than any other measure yet offered.

The above, in brief, are the great questions, most nearly concerning our prosperity and happiness, before the country today, and legislation must be had on them or Agriculture will continue a warring profession, and the bulk of the country must continue to suffer and pay tribute to the chosen few. Therefore we must know just how a man stands on these great vital questions before can consciously support him. If our dearest friend or closest relative were a candidate and did not hold the above views, we could not and would not support him.

HAVE YOU FORMED AND EXPRESSED AN OPINION, &c?

In the case of State against Avery Butler, recently tried at Sampson Superior Court, so many persons were rejected on the ground that they had formed opinions from the newspaper reports of the case that it caused some to conclude that the newspapers ought not to publish accounts of homicides and other crimes, and even the able lawyers conducting the defence blamed us in no small degree for publishing the facts and statements that we did before the trial was finished; but we think that a newspaper would not be a news-paper if it suppressed accounts of the important events of the day, and furthermore we know that if men who read the papers are to be excluded from the jury box because of opinions formed from reading accounts therein it amounts to excluding the intelligence of the county from the trial of important cases and leaves it to ignorance and stupidity We have time and again contended thro' these columns that it was not in keeping with the spirit of progress of the age to exclude men from the jury, on grounds that have lost their force and point, and are therefore now absurd. We intended to write this article immediately after the trial, and had asked a legal friend to furnish us with the opinions of eminent jurists on the question, who has not done so till just now. The following are the extracts :

Chief Justice Agnew, of Pennsylvania, said : 'We must either recede and go back to the practice of an age when ingnorance of passing events constituted a characteristic of the times, and exclude every juror who has formed an opinion, even the slightest; or we must stand abreast with the present age, when every remarkable event of to-day is known all over the country to-morrow, and exclude those only whose opinions are so fixed as to be pre-judgments, or have been formed upon the known evidences of the case. It is needless to say that the world moves and carries us with it, and if we lag behind we must commit the trial of the most causes in life to those so ignorant that their dark minds have never been smitten by the rays of intelligence." (75 p. 424.)

Chief Justice Marshall, in the trial of Aaron Burr, said : "Were it possible to obtain a jury without any prepossessions whatever, respecting the guilt or innocence of the accused, it would be extremely desirable to obtain such a jury : but this is perhaps impossible and therefore will not be required. The opinion which has been avowed by the court is that light impressions which may fairly be supposed to yield to the testimony that may be offered, which may leave the mind open to a fair consideration of that testimony, constitute no sufficient objection to a juror; but that those strong and deep impressions which will close the mind against the testimony that may be offered in opposition to them, which will combat that testimony and resist its force, do constitute a sufficient objection to him."

In 1878 Chief Justice Waite used this language in the opinion in Reynolds v. U. S., 98 U. S. 155 : "The theory of the law is that a juror who has formed an opinion cannot be impartial. Every opinion which he may entertain need not have that effect. In these days of newspaper enterprise and universal education, every case of public interest is almost as a matter of necessity, brought to the attention of all the intelligent people in the vicinity, and scarcely any one can be found among those best fitted for jurors who has not read or heard of it, and who has not some impressions or some opinions in respect to its merits. It is clear, therefore, that upon the trial of the issue of fact raised by a challenge for such cause the court will practically be called upon to determine whether the nature and strength of the opinion formed are such as, in law, necessarily to raise the presumption of partiality."

In the famous Webster case, Chief Justice Shaw, of Mass., said : "The opinion or judgment must be something more than a vague impression, formed from casual conversation with others, or from reading imperfect, abreviated newspaper reports. It must be such an opinion upon the merits of the question as would be likely to to bias or pervert a candid judgment upon a full hearing of the evidence."

In an Iowa case (State vs. Lawrence, 38 Iowa 51,) a juror was held competent who said : "I believe the man has been murdered and that the defendant did it. It would now take some evidence or explanation to remove the opinion from my mind. I have no bias upon my mind for or against the defendant. I know nothing about the case except what I have heard from rumor and newspaper prints. I believe I can sit and decide the case with the same impartiality as if I had never heard of the case."

In an English case, Lord Tenterden said : "The ancient authorities show that expressions used by a juryman are not a cause of challenge, unless they are to be referred to something of ill-will toward the party challenging."

Our own Supreme Courts have held that, "when a juror says he has formed and expressed the opinion that the prisoner is guilty, but states further that his mind was fair and unbiased and that he could hear the evidence and render a verdict without being in any degree influenced by what he had heard or said, he is competent to serve as a juror."

From these extracts it fully appears that the public may, with all propriety read accounts of the crimes and events of the day, provided no such ill-will or prejudiced is formed as unfits one for jury duty.

THE OPINION OF OUR READERS ON THE VARIOUS TOPICS OF THE DAY.

AN ERROR.
(Contributed by K.)

The reason ascribed by the opponents of a Railroad Commission, when, that important subject was before the last Legislature, was that a commission would be unable to accomplish any good for the people. The work done by the Aycock investigating committee in forcing two railroad corporations to pay taxes, is the strongest possible evidence that a Railroad Commission could do good and one is sadly needed in this State.—Wilson Advance.

MR. EDITOR : The above clipping appeared in the last issue of your paper. Ordinarily the opponents of a Railroad Commission do not notice the many unaccountable things that are said upon the subject, but when a paper like yours, which has ever been fair and impartial in its statements, copies an article like the above from the Wilson Advance perhaps it is fair and due to justice and truth to call your attention to the misstatements, or rather the error into which the Advance has fallen.

No commission that has been appointed by any State in the Union has the power to tax railroads. The Commission Bill offered in the last Legislature of North Carolina has not the word "tax" in it from the first line to the last line in the bill If the people of North Carolina had a Railroad Commission it would have no power to tax the railroads. No commission that could be appointed could possibly have such power. Why ? Because the Legislature alone can tax, and this must be done at each session by a Revenue Bill, duly passed by each House, and must be read on three different days and must then be passed by a vote of yeas and nays. In no other way can a tax be provided for in this State.

Let me call your attention to a few sections of the Constitution of North Carolina and you will see how jealous the Constitution guards the taxing power. See Article I, Section 23 of the Constitution, it reads :

"The people of the State ought not to be taxed or made subject to the payment of any impost or duty without the consent of themselves or representatives in General Assembly freely given."

Now see Article II, Section 14:

"No law shall be passed to raise money on the credit of the State or to pledge the faith of the State, directly or indirectly, for the payment of any debt, or to impose any tax upon the people of the State, or to allow the counties, cities or towns to do so, unless the bill for the purpose shall have been read three several times in each house of the General Assembly and passed three several readings, which readings shall have been on three different days and agreed to by each house respectively and unless the yeas and nays on the second and third reading of the bill shall have been entered on the journal."

Now the same rule that applies to "the people of the State," applies to the corporations of the States, as has been said. "a corporation is a body without a soul."

Now see Article V. Section 3 :

"Laws shall be passed taxing by a uniform rule all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise; and, also all real and personal property according to its true value in money. The General Assembly may also tax trades, professions, franchises and incomes—provided that no income shall be taxed when the property from which the income is derived is taxed."

It will be observed in the above section that the words are "joint stock companies, or otherwise." The words "or otherwise" means all "joint stock," such as corporations.

To every thinking man it must be apparent from what has been said that no power except the Legislature can impose a tax, and this power the Legislature cannot delegate to any other persons, and to give this power to a Railroad Commission would be to delegate to the Commission the power to tax. So careful is the Constitution upon this

ALLIANCE NOTES, DISCUSSIONS AND THE DOINGS OF THE VARIOUS LODGES.

The Farmers' Alliance and Education.

Supt. E. C. Branson, of the Graded Schools of Atlanta, Ga., in a letter in the February number of the Georgia Teacher published in Atlanta made a statement which was construed by a correspondent of The School Journal, of New York the leading educational paper in the United States to mean that "the county alliances in North Carolina were calling upon one another to demand the abolition of the public schools of the State," and the School Journal, in a short editorial mentioned the statement. Feeling that the Farmers' Alliance of North Carolina had been badly misrepresented, Mr. Edward E. Britton, the Principal of the Mount Olive High School, laid the matter before Mr. J. B. Oliver, a prominent member of the alliance in this section. Mr. Oliver pronounced the statement false and referred Mr. Britton to the President and Secretary of the State alliance. These gentlemen were written to, and pending their reply, Mr. Britton wrote a letter to the School Journal, which that paper published in an abridged form as follows:

"Upon seeing your comment on the letter of Mr. E. C, Branson, in which it was stated that "the county alliances of North Carolina were calling upon one another to demand the abolition of the public schools of the State," I wrote Mr. J. B. Oliver a prominent "alliance man." He declared that the "alliance men" were not opponents of the public schools, and said it was reported that a small sub-alliance had passed a resolution calling attention to the short public school term, and the inefficiency in the management-declaring that they wanted better public schools or none at all. This is the action of a small sub-alliance. The farmers of the "Old North State" must not be put on record as opposed to public schools. They are the staunchest supporters of them; in place of wanting them abolished, they are asking only that they be improved."

In commenting on Mr. Britton's letter the School Journal says: "This is just the ground Mr. Branson takes. He quoted the action of the alliance to show the earnestness of the feeling that the schools should be improved. The short terms, the poor pay, will only invite poor teachers; hence the poor teaching that is so generally complanied of."

It is a significant sign of better things, when able men, like Prof. Britton at the head of the fine private school at Mount Olive, take so deep an interest in the welfare of the struggling public schools of his State. The time is not far distant when those schools will take a high rank. There seems to be a little tendency to find fault with Supt. Branson for speaking out. No more earnest friend of the public schools of the South exists; his earnest desire to see them improved causes him to speak, and we commend him for it. He is one of the many who feel deeply that the short terms and the poor pay only bring the public schools into contempt. We have a large number of very earnest letters, all breathing devotion to the cause of public schools, but saying also, "Behold our empty purses, our threadbare garments, and do something for us."

Mr. Elias Carr, the President of the Farmers' Alliance in a letter to Mr. Britton says: "Replying briefly to yours of the 12th inst., simply to deny that that "the county alliances in North Carolina were calling upon one another to demand the abolition of the public schools." The education of the masses is one of the cardinal principles of the order, see constitution enclosed herewith I do not know how such a

FOR CONGRESS.

"Cumberland" Presents a Man and Invites the Public to Examine his Record and Weigh his Acts.

The Fayetteville Observer of May 1st contains the following card from a correspondent, signing himself "Cumberland," in which he reviews that creditable record made by Col. Green in the 48th and 49th Congress and points out reasons why he should be renominated :

Editor Observer:—The time is rapidly approaching when the Democratic voters of the 3rd Congressional district, in convention assembled, will nominate some good true man to represent them in the House of Representatives of the 52nd Congress. Many and varied must be the qualifications of the man who is to hold this important trust; and, casting my eyes around upon the many who aspire to this position, and carefully weighing each in the balances of my judgment, none seems so well-adapted by every statesman-like requisite as the gentleman whose name heads this column. Of broad and liberal views induced by a thorough education and intimate contact with the outside world, aggressive when error is to be combatted and corruption overthrown, stubborn and unyielding when truth is to be vindicated and the principles of pure government upheld, Col. Wharton J. Green is in every way eminently qualified to represent the intelligence and integrity of this District, and in in no better way can the interest of the people be subserved than by giving him a unanimous nomination in this convention.

Casting his lot among us considerably over a decade of years ago, during which time he has won the respect and esteem of all by his fearless course and by his polished and cordial demeanor, and devoting his time, means and energies to the noble science of agriculture, there is in his heart a responsive throb to every ambition, impulse, sorrow and joy of his countrymen, and he is emphatically of the people, with the people and for the people in every thing that appertains to their material interests. Having participated in its dangers and hardships most actively duing the late war, the military prefix to his name is no empty title, no idly sounding pseudonymn granted by the tongue of sycophancy or adulation, but it was welded indissolubly to his personality by the fiery breath of a hundred battles, and around it cluster memories of the sabre's flash, the cannon's roar and fields drunk deep in patriotic blood.

Having served several terms in Congress where his fidelity to duty and intelligent efforts in behalf of his constituency compelled the admiration and plaudits of his colleagues, and where, as I will later show, he carried constantly before him as "a frontlet to his eyes" the best interests of the people whom he represented, he has the experience that is of more avail than ordinary brains and good intentions. His associates in the House and Senate are men of national reputation and unbounded influence, and this fact means unlimited strength in any position that he may take for the benefit of his constituents. As an evidence of his influence and the many wise measures which he had advocated in behalf of the people, I cite the following:

On taking his seat in the 48th Congress he was appinted on the Committee of Agriculture, and, next to the Chairman, was senior member of it in the 49th Congress. In the 48th Congress he was a member of the Select Committee on ventilation and acoustics, and in the 49th Congress was chairman of the same.

Among the bills introduced by him in the 48th Congress, was one to erect a public building in Fayetteville and also to provide for holding Federal courts at the same place. The recognized policy of the party being against appropriations for public buildings where no Federal court is established, the first was defeated by the non-passage of the other. Also a bill, later on adopted, to erect a public building in Wilmington (then in his district,) the outgrowth of which is the present fine structure now nearing completion. He also introduced a bill, which was passed, establishing lights on the lower Cape Fear. A bill for the purpose of securing greater efficiency in the star route mail service by requiring contractors to reside in the State was ably advocated by him and became a law. A measure to prevent the adulteration of food and drugs, which was eloquently and ably championed by him in a masterly speech on the floor of the House, secured a favorable report from the Committee on Public Health, and lacked but two votes of passage in the House. This illustrates and speaks in an eloquent tongue of his abiding interest in and love for his countrymen at large. He also introduced a bill to encourage the cultivation of fruits, which obtained a three-fourths vote in the agricultural committee, but failed of final passage on the floor, he submitting the mijority report. Also a bill for the payment to the people of the rebate on tobacco. During the second session of the 48th Congress he introduced an amendment to the inter-State commerce bill, requiring railroads embraced in said bill to do their own expressage with a view to reduced rates to shippers. In setting forth the claims of this amendment, he made a strong, logical speech, which won for him unstinted praise, compliments even from his most bitter, stubborn opponents. During the same session he delivered a speech opposing most strenuously the retirement and pensioning of Gen. Grant, who was then a private citizen.

In the first session of the 49th Congress a bill was introduced by him to regulate compensatson and mileage in contested election cases, the object being to prevent a swindle on the Government by making it pay both candidates for the same seat. In the second session of the 49th Congress a bill for a graduated income tax, to compel capital to bear its due proportion of the burdens of the Government, on almost identical with the one lately introduced by Col Rowland, was proposed by Wharton J. Green. He also in the 49th Congress supported the oleomargarine bill, which is now a law of the land, believing it to be sanctioned by justice and sound policy and in the interest of the great mass of the people as against a few extortional monopolists, who, by making and selling as honest butter a spurious article composed of vile ingredients, were realizing from 100 to 200 per cent. profit for themselves, and thus destroying the great dairy interests of the country. The tax so imposed yields a handsome and growing revenue to the Government, although only one fourth of that levied on manufactured tobacco, and without crippling the producer cheapens the bogus article almost one-half to the consumer by subjecting it to brand or lable. The effect of its operation militates against the interests of no one in North Carolina, and is decidely beneficial to the majority. In addition to the above he introduced and advocated various bills for the improvement of the rivers and water ways in his district, many of which were adopted. He also warmly supported the Mexican pension bill whereby a few old veterans, mostly Southern men, were accorded a small fraction of the wholesale pensions given those of the more favored section in a later war. Moreover he introduced divers and sundry bills of a private character, together with petitions and motions too numerous to mention.

In conclusion, I would ask you, fellow countrymen, to examine carefully his record, weigh well his acts when he was your servant, and then determine whether or not he is a fit man in whose hands your interests may be entrusted. Then if your decision be favorable—and it cannot be otherwise—give him your hearty support at the coming convention. CUMBERLAND.

LETTER WRITING.

The man who writes agreeable letters about matters that are of no consequence to anybody, is usually looked upon as a genius; nor can it be denied that the ability to invest nothing with a transitory interest is a peculiar gift. But the elaborator of trifles is seldom good at anything else. Bid him descant on a weighty subject, and he breaks down. His phrases lack point; his arguments backbone. He may make a sentimental lady sigh, but he will never make a stout disputant wince. Truth, to him, wears the guise of a butter-fly in a garden, and, though continually chasing it through a labyrinth of flowers, he is rarely fortunate enough to put his hat upon it.

Our idea of a model letter writer is very different from this. Give us the correspondent who can compress much thought into small compass—whose sentences, like the sledge hammer blows delivered in Verdi's Anvil Chorus, have a nervous ring about them. The hammer men of Thought's forges, the men who shape and mould great enterprises, never write long, rambling, point no point letters. They have no notion that pen, ink and paper were given us to dilute our mother tongue, or that mental gold is all the better for being beaten out thin.

A letter that contains a word more than is necessary to convey the idea bores us and is an imposition on any busy man.

A Constituent Asks Him Certain Questions Upon Public Measures.

[State Chronicle.]

Our Representative, Hon. B H. Bunn, in an interview published in a recent issue of the State Chronicle, gave his views as to certain prominent questions now before the public, but he failed to make himself clear. We desire to have unequivocal answers to each of the following questions :

(1.) Are you in favor of the bill introduced by Senator Vance in the United States Senate, known as the "Sub-Treasury Bill," for the relief of the agriculturists ?

(2) Do you oppose the present national banking system ?

(3.) Are you in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver ?

(4.) Are you in favor of a railroad commission for the regulation of freights and tariffs on the railroads of North Carolina?

A plain answer to each of the above questions is desired by you. CONSTITUENTS.

SOMETHING INTERESTING TO OUR YOUNG READERS.

The Domestic Girl.
(BY A. E. M.)

The girl we love to think of, and talk of is the domestic girl. In her home and neighborhood she is a blessed helper and comforter; she feels that her hands are none too white and tender to assist in anything that would relieve the hands of mother, or add to the well fare of brother or sister. She does not always wait to be served with dinner at ten in her own room, but is often see helping in the cooking-room, dusting and replacing scattered articles of the sitting-room and many other duties that make her better for the world. She appears as pleasant and lovely at home as abroad; her chief delight is in trying to make home pleasant and attractive, not looking cross and sour when there is no ball to attend, no pleasure trip to take or something to call her from home. Her mind is not fully absorbed by the fancies and follies of the world, but she endeavors to make herself useful at home, benevolent to the community and make it better by her having lived in it. Let us then, the girls of Sampson try to retain the accomplishments of the domestic girl; not yield to the fancies and follies of the world, but be lovers of home benevolence, kindness and friendship. Life will then seem to us and appear to others a path ever level and a garen sweets ever fresh and green.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

A few days ago the Chronicle noted a contest in Charlotte between two students of Trinity College and two students of Davidson for a medal. We are assured that the speaking was of a high order and that the young men showed that they had received excellent training.

One year ago the only contests between the colleges in the State was: Which has the most brawn? which can push harder and stand more hard usage? The boys knocked each other over, broke a leg, injured a nose or two, but never reached a decision as to which was the best animal.

The change is one for the better. If we are to have public contests between representatives of our colleges, let the issue be one of brains and industry rather than of brawn and muscle.—State Chronicle.

"Every Spring,"

Says one of the best housewives in New England, "We feel the necessity of taking a good medicine to purify the blood, and we all take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the children free from humors, my husband says it gives him a good appetite, and for myself I am sure I could never do all my work if it was not for this splendid medicine. It makes me feel strong and cheerful, and I am never troubled with headache or that tired feeling, as I used to be."

Ex-Speaker John G. Carlisle has been elected to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Beck. So Kentucky's ablest son continues to represent her in the Senate.

"I can name upon my ten fingers," said Republican Congressman Ben Butterworth, in his speech on the McKinley bill, "men whose combined profits in the last decade have exceeded those of all the agriculturalists of any State in this Union."

Edmunds and Ingalls are said to be sponsors for Vice President Morton. when he is in doubt as to a ruling he looks for a nod from either. Morton may know how to run a bank or saloon but in his present position, he is a failure.

The North Carolina Farmer, a monthly agricultural magazine, which has been published by J. H. Ennis since 1876, has been changed to a weekly, and is called the Southern Farmer. It contains much interesting and valuable matter pertaining to the farm and household.

The Radicals were anxious to have the negro emancipated and enfranchised, because they thought there was a big political plum in it for them, but finding the plum sour they are now trying to have him disfranchised by being ommitted from the eleventh census, thus depriving the South of a part of her present representation in Congress. The New York Star claims to have discovered a plot by Quay to this effect.

Hon. Thos. G. Skinner says he thinks some measure will pass Congress this session for the relief of the farmer.

He thinks that the farmer Republicans of the West, combined with the farmer Democrat of the South, have influence enough to compel the politicians in Congress to legislate in their interests. Petitions have poured in from every district in North Carolina looking to this object, and have been presented by every member of our delegation.

A CONVERTED REPUBLICAN MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Last week Ben Butterworth, a Republican, delivered the speech of the season in the House. It was on the tariff question, and he tore loose from party traces and condemned the tariff as unjust and ruinous to the farmer. He said that he would rather resign his seat than depart from his belief on that question.

The Republicans frowned and scowled, and a few of the bolder and more spirited men tried to puzzle him with questions which would put him in a false position on the record. But Mr. Butterworth hit them back one by one with such force that they were silenced.

Let the Alliance continue its crusade against the tariff and national banking system. It is already reaping rewards for its labors.

Under "Forum of Public Opinion" will be found a long article headed "An Error," from "K," who takes the clipping about Railroad Commissions etc., in our last issue taken from the Advance, as his text. But it seems to us that "K" himself is in error in that he misinterprets the Advance's meaning. All that "K" says and the quotations he makes from the Constitution to show that a commission could not levy a tax on corporations would be admitted, we of course suppose, by the Advance without argument, and we take it that the clipping from the Advance conveys no such meaning. When it says that the Aycock Investigating Committee forced two railroads to pay taxes, we interpreted it to mean that they agreed to pay taxes under pressure of public opinion and the evident determination of the public to keep up the investigations till the people should know something of their business and management, and that the concession on the part of the railroads simply shows that they had rather pay tax than be further investigated. This is not the first committee appointed to investigate their affairs and they knew that it would not be the last one unless they made satisfactory concessions. "K" says that the railroads agreed to pay tax because it was right that they should do so, since they expected the State to protect their property. This simple rule of equity is very true and would have applied for all time and we are very sorry that they have just now discovered it, and this failure they could now remedy by paying back conscience money also. But a commission would have a different and very legitimate object, and to designate that, we will ask "K" two questions:

Have the railroads not the power to discriminate in favor of or against any place or party at their own sweet personal wills?

Is it safe for a State to put a power, unrestricted, that can be used to terrible detriment, in the hands of private parties, even if this power had never been abused?

This shows the province of a commission, it is to be a check on the weakness of man holding such power, simply a vigil to see that simple justice is done, and if the State cannot do this, then it has created a creature greater than itself, and if greater than the State then to a certain extent the State is in its power.

The Washington correspondent of the State Chronicle says:

The Post of this morning has an editorial notice of the fact that Hon. Wharton J. Green will be a candidate for Congress in the third N. C. district. Col. Green, Mrs. Green, and their daughter, Mrs. Pembroke Jones, have a host of friends here who would be delighted to have him re-elected. He has powerful political and social influence here which would be largely increased by a long Congressional term. The State never sent a more faithful and efficient representative here.

Representatives Roger Mills and Oates have written strong letters to their constituents condemning the H. R. bill 7162 and Senate bill 2806, in reference to building sub-treasury's for storing grain, cotton &c.

MOORE FALLS INTO LINE.

(Fayetteville Observer.)

The Carthage Blade, published in Moore county, indorses all that has been said of our worthy county-man, Col. Wharton J. Green, for the nomination for Congress in this district, and in fitting terms adds:

"No doubt Cumberland will be delighted to honor her illustrious son, for by his upright, honorable character, faithful performance of public trusts, deep interest in the welfare of his constituents while previously serving this district in Congress, not only reflected honor upon the third district but upon the entire State. We have no doubt that Col. Green is decidedly the ablest man in the field, and we know that he would make an excellent Representative, judging the future by the past. Who does this county favor for Congress? Our columns are open for a discussion of the matter"

The many friends of Col. Green are enthusiastic over the bright outlook for his success at the approaching convention.

point that we find the following in Article V, section 7 of the Constitution. It reads:

"Every Act of the General Assembly levying a tax shall state the special object to which it is to be applied, and it shall be applied to no other purpose."

This section is quoted to show how careful the Constitution was, not to allow even special taxes to be levied by any other power save the General Assembly. Even when the people vote to tax themselves as they sometimes do to build railroads, &c., then the General Assembly must first pass the bill to allow them to do so.

Mr. Editor, the Advance has fallen into an error which may mislead the people by making them believe that a Railroad Commission could tax the Railroads or even have anything to do with taxing them. So careful is the Constitution on the taxing power that it says: The Revenue bill—(that is the bill to tax)—must originate in the House of Commons. The Senate cannot even originate a Revenue bill.

The only exception to the rule that the Legislature alone can tax is in the case where the Constitution allows the County Commissioners to levy a tax for certain county expenses, and this is only because the counties are a part of the State Government. In one sense of the word each county is like a little State, and requires a certain amount of money to run its county government, but even in the case of County Commissioner they are restricted by the Constitution.

The article taken from The Advance says "the investigating committee" forced two railroads to pay taxes. Let me call your attention to the latter part of the act of the Legislature appointing that committee. It says:

"The committee shall report the testimony taken by them and shall report such legislation or orther proceedings as in their opinion may be requisite to compel said companies to pay their lawful taxes; and shall have power, and is hereby instructed to sit after the adjournment of this session of the General Assembly and make report by bill or otherwise to the next General Assembly."

Thus you see the only power conferred upon the committee is to "report by bill or otherwise to the next General Assembly." Why? Because no other power could tax but the General Assembly. I believe that every corporation in the State ought to pay taxes; but it is idle to talk about a Railroad Commission having anything to do with the matter. No power on earth save the Legislature can control this matter of taxation. And there are some railroads in the State which even the Legislature cannot tax because their charters exempt them from taxation. Among this number is the Wilmington and Weldon. Although they are exempt, yet out of their own free will they come forward and say they are willing to pay taxes to the State. It is wrong to say that they "were forced to do so," when it is an error so to state.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the State cannot tax the Wilmington and Weldon road. Any one who cares to read this decision can find it in 13th Wallace's United States Supreme Court Reports, page 568.

But while they are perfectly protected by this decision, yet of their own free will and accord they come forward and say they are willing to be taxed. If the question is asked why they do this I can only answer in their own language, when they say "If any uprising were to take place and their property were threatened, they would call upon the State for protection, as in many sections in this day of strikes, &c., much valuable property is often laid waste. If then they claim the State's protection, it is but right they should share the burden along with all other people who desire protection." When people desire to be generous it is wrong to impute other motives to them. There is one strange fact in connection with this question of railroad taxation to many people, and it is this, that those who oppose a Railroad Commission have been foremost in saying that all railroads ought to pay taxes, and have even voted for ills in the Legislature looking to the taxation of all corporations not only Railroads but Telegraph and Express Companies. The reason for this is because they believe all should share the burdens of State alike.

THE MONETIZATION OF LAND.

BY F. B. COOPER.

That which we call money has in all ages and nations been based upon one of three principles or ideas or more accurately upon a combination of two or more of them. These are: 1st Real value. 2nd. Representative value, and 3rd. Fiat value; and these principles either singly or in combination underlie every system of exchanges or currency. Trade based upon real value alone is pure barter and exist to a very limited extent in civilized countries and no currency has ever been or can ever be based upon this principle alone. The nearest approach to it is a metlalic currency. When a man exchanges his cotton for gold he does not proceed upon the principle that so many ounces of gold are equal in real value to so many pounds of cotton, but observing what value has been stamped upon the gold by authority of law he takes it at that value without once thinking of ascertaining the weight. Representative value is the principle upon which paper currency is supposed to be based. A ten dollar bill or note is of very little intrinsic value but because it is supposed to represent ten dollas of real value somewhere as in the coffers of a bank or the government treasury, it passes current and performs all the functions of money.

Fiat money as it is called is that which does not possess intrinsic value and neither represents nor professes to represent real value. It is simply and purely a promise to pay. The green back currency of this county was purely fiat money and the government bonds of to day are the same. It is very clear that a currency based upon fiat value inasmuch as it costs practically nothing to produce it, can be supplied by the government to its citizens at an exceedingly low rate of interest, and it is equally clear that, as such a currency will perform all the functions of money as efficiently as the very expensive gold and silver, it is the duty of government to provide it in sufficient abundance for the needs of the people. Indeed the government has provided just such a currency as this for the use of the very rich. Bonds each of large value are issued and with these such men as Gould and Vanderbilt can buy and sell railroads &c but an ordinary man can never own one. Nay so far are the very rich from paying any interest upon their peculiar currency that they are permitted to charge the government interest.

Let us suppose the government to issue to us through a national bank, a ten dollar bill which is nothing more than a note by which the government or the bank promises to pay the holder ten dollars. This note passes from the bank into the hands of a private citizen, who gives his note with abundant security in exchange for it. We will say that he keeps it for two years and then presents it at the bank for payment. He receives just ten dollars and nothing at all is said about interest. But when he comes to pay his ten dollar note to the bank, he is required to pay, not only the ten dollars as principle, but eight per cent interest for ten years or in all $18.00. Who has got the $8? The Bank. Then the rich grow richer at the expense of the poor.

We hear much said of the rapidity with which the United States is paying off its national debt. This government has paid since the war by means of cruel taxation imposed almost exclusively upon the industrial classes a sum which baffles comprehension and almost defies computation and yet, in real truth, the national debt is as large now as it was the day the war ended. It will take more bales of cotton, more bushels of wheat, more pounds of pork and more of anything which the farmer produces to discharge the national debt to day than would have been required to do so in 1865. The criminal contraction of the currency and excessive interest is the ground-work of most of the evils under which the industrial classes are laboring and the national banking system is responsible for the whole thing. With a currency based upon the monetization of land or free banking made safe, or with a currency issued direct from the government in quantities sufficient to supply the needs of the people, there is no earthly reason why any one by giving sufficient security could not obtain all the money which he might need for not more than three per cent interest.

Sunday School Convention.

It is the earnest desire of the State Sunday School Executive Committee to have all the Sunday School workers in Sampson County organized into a County Sunday School Convention. I have been urgently requested by H. N. Snow, Secretary of that committee to effect an organization of the county. In order to do this I hereby request all superintendents of Sabbath Schools in the county of what ever denomination to send me their names and post offices immediately, that I may be able to correspond with them in regard to time and place of meeting and other important matters, please do not neglect this call superintendents.

charge could have gone forth, except it is a revival of the old charge of the News and Observer based upon the passage of a resolution by a Pitt county sub-alliance "that they wanted better public schools or none," simply meaning that they intended to improve the system if in their power. Which charges were replied to at the by Mr. E. A. Moye, of Greenville, N. C., and declined publication by in the N. and O. I shall endeavor to get a copy of the entire correspondence and forward to you at an early day with a hope that you will set us a right with the education upon whom we greatly rely."

From the State Secretary of the Alliance, Mr. E. C. Beddingfield, a similar letter was received by Mr. Britton. In the course of a denial of the charge, the letter reads this: "no doubt many of the enemies of the order are glad to circulate the report, hoping to create an impression that the reform movement begun by the farmers and laborers of this country is the effect of ignorance and selfishness. The truth is that a large majority of the members of the alliance realize the fact that the only hope of the liberties of the people being restored and preserved lies in the education of the masses. I trust you will use your influence to stop this infamous rumor."

Finally Mr. Branson thus sets himself right in the last issue of the "School Journal." "The full text of my articles will show that I stated the farmers position to be reform or abolishment of the public schools, a fragmentary quotation gives Mr. Harrell (who in a letter to the School Journal had called Mr. Branson to account for his statement.—Ed.) Opportunity to characterize me as "wholly false" in my statement in both my recent articles. I distinctly stated that the Southern farmer was the best friend of the doctrines of popular education we had; and that we must look to this class of our citizens for the public reforms which are so lamentably needed in the South.

Here are the resolutions referred to in my recent articles, as found in the Progressive Farmer of Jan. 21st 1890.

Resolved; "That we, the Farmers' Alliance of Pitt county, N. C., recognizing the inefficiency of the present public school system; denounce it as oppressive, unjust and iniquitous."

Resolved: "That we demand that our representetives in the next general assembly use their utmost endeavors to abolish or effect a reform in the present public school system.

Resolved: "That we ask the county alliances throughout the State to unite with us in correcting such pernicious and unstatesmanlike legislation, etc."

We fully endorses the statement that the alliance believes in the education of the masses and in concluding this article make the following extract from the declaration of priciples of the order.

"Profoundly impressed that we, the farmers' alliance, united by the strong and faithful ties of finanical and home interests, shou'd set forth our declaration of intentions, we therefore resolve: 1. To labor for the education of the agricultural classes, in the science of economical government, in a strictly non partisan spirit."

Mr. Livingstone, the national Lecturer of the Farmers' Alliance append before the ways and means committee of Congress last week in behalf of the farmers asking for remedial legislation. He said there need be no misapprehention concerning the objects of the Alliance. It was not seeking to displace the ruling political parties. The sub-treasury bill had nothing to do with the tariff. The farmers asked that the sub-treasury bill be passed. Fifty-eight homes of farmers had been sold in Connecticut in one day this week. Relief was demanded, and the farmers knew how to get it. * * * *

If Congress refused to endorse the sub-treasury law, he said it should remove the restrictions hedging in the national banking system. The sub treasury plan gave the farmer a chance to escape the speculator by allowing him to deposit his crops in the sub-treasury at any time, and spared him selling at stated seasons. If the sub-treasury bill were passed, there would not be a bucket shop left in the United States. There need be no fear that the bill would cause the farmers to form a trust.

A writer in the "Southern Alliance Farmer," says that for the first time in twenty years the farmers are looking up—heads hoisted and tails over the dash board, which means they are determined upon not only a reform in the financial condition of National and State government, which is draining the life blood of agriculture, but the suppression of the wicked combinations and trusts afflicting the people.

—THE CAUCASIAN greatly appreciates the efforts that its friends put forth to increase its support and usefulness. On one day this week two of our friends secured for us, each, the name of a new subscriber, accompanied by the cash. Both of these new subscribers are strangers to us, one lives in Davie county, the other in Fayetteville. Their attention was simply called to the merits of the paper by our friends Messrs. W. E. Bass and Thos. Owens respectively. If all of our friends would kindly assist us in the same way we would soon have the 3,000 subscribers that we are striving for.

—An esteemed subscriber of Goldsboro in a private letter a few days since says: "THE CAUCASIAN" is ever a most welcome visitor and is always read with a great deal of interest. Mrs.—has threatened several times to write and compliment you on your "Womans Sphere" but says that she cant find words sufficient to express her high appreciation of it. In fact we are very much disappointed if the paper ever fails to come. Well you may say, "show your appreciation by remitting amount due me," and every one of your 1700 subscribers should do so. We are proud of the paper and consider it one of the best weeklies in the State.

—We understand that some of the friends and relatives of the late Mr. J. M. Williford are displeased at the sobriquet, "Blue Dick," which was applied to him in a friendly and good natured way while on the campaign in the county a few years since for the Legislature. We were at school at that time and did not know Mr. Williford. Upon hearing if his death we inquired about him and was told by one of his friends, who spoke very pleasantly about him, that if we would use the nickname, as above, that every one would know to whom we referred. We are never intentionally disrespectful to the living, and far be it from us to so ever appear to the memory of the dead.

MCDANIELS.

A fire broke out near Perkersburg last week and burned quite a large area of land before it was stopped.

LITTLE COHARIE.

The Rev. Mr. Leary of Ebenezer Academy will preach at Elizabeth church on the fourth Sunday in May.

TAYLOR'S BRIDGE.

During the storm last Friday evening lightening struck a large oak tree in 10 or 12 feet of Mr. J. A. McArthur's kitcher, tearing the tree almost literally to pieces. The kitchen caught fire, but Mr. McArthur, being present extinguished it before much damage was done. Mrs. McAarthur and her little daughter were badly stunned, one of the sons, who had just come from the field with his horse and plow and gone under a shelter was also shocked. The horse took fright and dashed off with the plow, tearing it to pieces.

Mr. Willie O. McArthur, son of our esteemed citizen V. J. McArthur, Esq., has accepted a position in the machine shops of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley R. R. Co., at Fayetteville. He left Friday the 16th to take active charge of his duties in that capacity.

Our hills and valleys are carpeted with "verdant growing crops."

A new industry has commenced to spring up in this township, in the mining line.

Mr. M. S. Merritt dug a live hog from the ground near this place the other day; a pleasing feature is that ground hogs evidently make the best sausage.

The rain falls impartially upon the just and upon the unjust in the same manner, the pale-moon-beams that quickens the lover's vows creeps through the cracks in the hen-house and shows the "midnight naturalist where the fattest pullet is roosting."

NEWTON GROVE.

Mr. Editor, Newton Grove township is hard to beat, the people are working with a will, the prospects are fair now for a good crop, corn looking well, good stands of cotton, some of the farmers are chopping out and siding their cotton. You may know they are working with a will, I walked up to one my neighbors the other day and what do you think, I saw the old woman was a plowing the old man, I was surprised knowing he had a good mare and mule, I soon saw the cause, the mare had a fine colt and he told the old woman it would never do for the plow to stop so she hitched him in; he is very tractable, works well. He is a noble old horse, he is six feet and four inches, the father of sixteen children, I think he has concluded that he is one of the old patriarchs and submits to most anything. Says he expects to have at least two dozen children.

Your paper is growing in favor of the people. ZEB.

The ice-cream and strawberry supper at Boykin's Chapel last Friday evening was quite a success—an abundance of many things delicious. We understand that the feast is to be repeated.

MINGO.

We are glad to know that Prof. M. Butler, the enterprising editor of THE CAUCASIAN will deliver the annual address at Clement High School Friday May the 30.

Rev. Lundy Lee, who has been very sick is mending slowly.

Look out for a Bill Arp of Mingo in a few weeks.

Glad to hear Capt. J. L. Autry is improving. MINOR.

TURKEY.

The body of Mrs. Dr. J. R. Marable, a most estimable lady, who died last Sunday, was interred in the old family cemetery at Elliot, last Monday evening. The funeral ceremonies were conducted by Rev. P. M. McIntire, of Faison.

HONEYCUTTS.

The closing exercises of Salem High School takes place to-day and to-morrow. We expect a treat from that able and learned scholar, Prof. B. F. Grady, who delivers the annual address on Friday.

Personals.

Messrs. W. G. Hubbard and D. M. Partrick returned Monday from the centennial council of the Episcopal Diocese. They were perfectly charmed with their trip.

Mr. L. A. Bethune, formerly on THE CAUCASIAN staff, but now from Manly, arrived in town Tuesday night. His many friends were delighted to see and give him a cordial welcome.

Prof. B. F. Grady, than whom North Carolina has no more astute, learned and scholarly gentleman, will be in Clinton to-night, the guest of Mr. J. S. Bizzell, on his way to Salem High School, at Huntley, where he delivers the annual address to-morrow.

Duplin Items.

(Regular Correspondence.)

Mr. H. Y. Moore, (Pete) formerly of this county, but now of Goldsboro, came down to Kenansville the 14th of this month, and carried home with him, as Mrs. Moore, one of our fairest young ladies, Miss Anna Brown was the lady. Pete has our congratulations.

It will be remembered that our county jail was destroyed about a year ago, since which time we have been using the Wayne county jail for our criminals, but we are now pleased to say that ground has been broken, and a nice brick structure will soon be finished to take the place of our old "wooden hut," and all that we now need, is a railroad from Warsaw, via Kenansville, to make our county flourish and we hope that the progressive W. & W. Co., will soon run a road from Warsaw, connecting with the Clinton branch, to Jacksonville Onslow county, connecting with boats &c, at that place, thereby furnishing an outlet for one of the richest sections of Eastern Carolina.

Our Kenansville "pleasure loving" people will have the pleasure of attending an entertainment on the night of the 30th inst., given by the Warsaw Dramatic Club, for the benefit of the new Methodist church at Warsaw. We bespeak for the club a full house, as the cause for which they are working, is a noble one.

Mr. D. S. Kennedy, a native of our county, but who has for sometime past been a citizen of Arizona, has returned to the land of his nativity, looking, "fat and pleasant." The "Wild West" has many attractions but there is no place like home to the average "tar heel." He says we know nothing of hot weather as he has seen the heat register 120 degrees, in the shade at noon for months stretch. We welcome him back.

The shipment of berries, peas, beans &c from the towns along the railroad is simply immence and our truckers are jubilent, and even tho' despondent at the late frosts, they now think they will come out even, and if we can only have a good crop season, Duplin will come to the front.

Hon. B. F. Grady, of our county will be a candidate before the Congressional Convention, for the Democratic nomination, and we ask our citizens to remember this at the proper time. Too much cannot be said of his great learning and experience, and if nominated will make an able Representation, and he would be elected beyond any doubt.

CORRESPONDENT.

Closing Exercises of Hayne Academy.

On last Friday, the 16th, a large audience assembled at Hayne Academy to witness the closing exercises of the Institution. The entire forenoon was spent in rendering the program. The little folks came first and did excellently well their parts, speaking in clear, distinct tones, which showed that much attention had been given to their training. Two essays, by the Misses Coopers were deserving of special praise. The declamations and essays were all good, and it is hardly fair to particularize a few of them. But "Adieu" recited by Miss Hall was too well and feelingly rendered not to receive special mention. When dinner was announced the assemblage repaired to an abundant spread of good things. After dinner the annual address was delivered by Senator E. W. Kerr, of Clinton. He called the attention of the young to the many advantages now offered them in the way of getting an education. Among other things, Mr. Kerr stated that Sampson county has now eleven or twelve High Schools. The address was interesting and instructive alike, and Mr. Kerr fully sustained his reputation as one of the most easy and eloquent speakers of Eastern North Carolina. Mr. Isham Royal was next called upon and responded in a short, but pointed and practical talk on education. Mr. D. A. Cooper was also called upon and made a pleasant talk of fifteen minutes, and said among other things that the people of Little Coharie were pleased with the management of Prof. Brewer, and would keep the school going. Prof. Brewer next arose and thanked his patrons for their hearty support, and spoke of his pleasant relations with them. As to whether the school would continue after this term, he said, was in the hands of the trustees. Prof. Brewer has done a good work and is ot be congratulated on his success.

(Special Correspondence.)

GLENWOOD, N. C., May 17, '90.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather an immense audience attended the commencement exercises of Glenwood High School on the 16th inst. The young men acquitted themselves with much credit, displaying much ability, not found in ordinary schools.

The exercises at night, though cut short by the rain, were enjoyed by all. Especially noticeable was the "negro minstrels," gotten up by the boys, who kept the audience in a roar of laughter for an hour.

Too much cannot be said in commendation of the annual address by C. B. Aycock, Esq. He chose for his subject one that could not fail to interest all, viz: "Money Getting and the Proper Uses of Money." To say that his address was good and was enjoyed by all would hardly give that talented orator justice.

Mr. E. B. Grantham won the scholarship prize; Mr. T. J. Lassiter, the prize on English Literature and Mr. W. W. Cole, the prize on best declamation.

With the parting song "God Be With You," closed the commencement exercises of the most prosperous term in the history of Glenwood Academy.

Thus another Red Letter Day is added to the great page, back to which our people and students will look for many a day. VIDI.

A FINE SERIES OF SERMONS

On the Six Fundamental Doctrines of Christ.

TWICE A DAY FOR A WEEK THE REV. MR. ARNOLD DELIVERS STIRRING AND FORCIBLE SERMONS TO LARGE AND ATTENTIVE AUDIENCES.

The fourth of Mr. Arnold's sermons upon the principles of the doctrine of Christ was

"LAYING ON OF HANDS."

He said:

The first two of these fundamental doctrines of Christ as stated in the first and second verses of the sixth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews are the pre-requisites for the rites and sacraments of the Church. They are spiritual affections—"Repentand Faith." The third and fourth of these principles are two external visible ordinances, or means of grace. Two more there are representing results and consequences, the "Resurrection of the Dead" and Eternal Judgment. Any one reading these verses must observe that the enumeration here made follows the natural and logical orders. The pre-requisites, the means of grace, and the results and consequences of employing or rejecting them. As regards five of these principles there is general acceptance, as universal perpetual, and essential, but in modern times one of the six stones on which the Christian Church was founded has been removed by some. Some who do not reject the doctrine of laying on of hands, yet deny to it the characteristics of a principle by claiming it to have here a temporary rite administered by the apostles for the purpose of bestowing miraculous powers, or they say it has reference to ordination. But principles are perpetual, such was not the supposed apostles' right, and principles are universal such was neither this supposed rite, nor ordination. So either the apostle, who placed this ordinance in this brief list of fundamental principles, erred in so classifying this rite, or else he had reference to some universal, perpetual and essential ordinance. Such a sacramental rite we find in the Apostolic Church, which was also faithfully, universally and perpetually observed in the Church down to the time of the Reformation as one of the essentials of Christian religion. We have also the testimony of the ancient fathers of the Church to the fact that the laying on of hands here referred to was what is commonly called confirmation among us. Let us now, by a brief study of the history of the early Church as preserved for us in the "Acts of the Apostles" to learn what was the original character of this rite, by whom administered and for what purpose. In the eighth chapter we are informed that Philip, a recently ordained Deacon went down to Samaria and preached Christ gladly received the Word of God as spoken by Philip, he received them into the Church by baptism. As soon as the Apostles who had not yet left Jerusalem, heard that Samaria had received the Word, they sent unto them two of their number, Peter and John, to bestow upon them the gift of God's Holy Spirit, which the deacon Philip had not power to confer. It could not have been a matter of small consequence whether or not the rite were administered, else, certainly Peter and John would not have gone at once so great a distance to lay their hands upon these persons. From this incident we learn that only those of Apostolic powers could confer the gift of the Holy Ghost in confirmation. Turn to the tenth chapter of the Acts. When St. Peter, at the command of his glorified Master went down to Cæsarea to open the door of the Church to the Gentiles, he was convinced by the out-pouring of the Holy Ghost, while yet speaking that those outside the privileges of the chosen people were yet chosen of God unto salvation. After these Gentiles had received in the same manner the same gift which had been bestowed upon the Apostles and believing Jews at Pentecost, St. Peter commanded them all to be baptized but did not lay his hands on them thus proving by the very omission that the rite was performed for the purpose of confering the Holy Ghost. In the nineteenth chapter of the Acts we read that St. Paul found at Ephesus a number of converts who had received only the baptism of John the Baptist. Upon enquiry he learned that these Christians had not received the Holy Ghost, since they had believed, not only this, but did not even know of the existence of Holy Ghost. After they were baptised in the name of the Lord Jesus, the Apostle laid his hands on them and they received the gift of the Holy Ghost. Passing out of the inspired writings of the New Testament, we may trace from the very first down through all the ages of the Church, the continuance of the ancient rite administered in the same manner and by the same order of the ministry. Cyprian, bishop of Carthage, in the third century, states: "The baptised were brought to the chief pastors of the Church, that by their prayers and the laying on of their hands they may receive the Holy Ghost." St. Jerome says: "This is the usage of our churches: The bishop goes forth and makes a tour, in order to lay his hands and invoke the Holy Ghost on those who have been baptised by our priests and deacons. Until the Reformation, by confirmation, every Christian made the profession of his faith, and thus received the gift of the Holy Ghost; and to-day, this rite is performed upon fully five-sixths of those who become Christians. May we not by what we have shown claim for this rite the characteristics of a principle, that it is perpetual universal and essential. We are not informed of any suplemental revelation from Christ dispensing with this rite, or substituting for it any other means of confering the Holy Ghost. But some object that this early rite conferred this gift with signs following, and that, in as much as, no such evidences attend confirmation now, it is, therefore, without effect and useless. Such a declamation proves too much. Jesus said: "These signs shall follow them which believe; In my name that shall cast out devils, they shall speak with tongues, &c. Shall we say there are no believers now, because those who profess faith in Christ cannot perform these signs? Those who were baptised by Philip worked miracles; has baptism become without effect because those who are baptised in our times cannot do the same. The time of miracles is past, but still the Spirit of God is bestowed, and works, in the souls of the faithful, their regeneration and salvation through those means and instrumentalities which are ordained in the Church.

IN MEMORIAM.

It hath pleased God to take unto himself one of His purest, His truest and his best of servants, Mrs. P. S. M. Marable, wife of Rich'd Marable, M. D. She died at her home in Turkey township last Sunday at two o'clock, P. M. and was buried the following evening in the family cemetery near Elliot.

Mrs. Marable's maiden name was Susan M. Bryan. She was born and raised near Taylor's Bridge and educated at Floral Hall, Robinson Co. On November 16th, 1847, she became the wife of Col. F. J. Faison, who was killed at the battle of Cold Harbor, 1822. On 25th of July, 1866, she married Dr. Marable, who survives her.

Mrs. Marable's life was beautiful and good. She harmed none, she treated all with kindness, candor and charity. Her acquaintances and neighbors universally speak well of her, saying that "there never lived a better woman." She belonged to "the salt of the earth." Early in life she connected herself with God's church on earth and until the end came was a faithful exponent of living, acting, trusting christianity. A city set on a hill cannot be hid and notwithstanding her retiring, modest disposition, the glow of her honest, true and faithful heart made itself deeply felt among her large circle of friends. Her last illness was unusually painful and trying. This she bore with christsan courage and resignation, and at last quietly passed over the river, where she doth now "rest under the shade of the trees," whose leaves are for the healing of the nations.

Mrs. Marable leaves six children, who, with her husband, have our deepest sympathy for the loss sustained, which, however, of coming joys when this life is over and the better life begun.

A Sad Condition.

I suffered for five years with the worst form of Blood Poison, during which time I was attended by the best physicians I could find, and tried numbers of proprietary medicines without any beneficial results. I continued to grow worse all this time, until my whole system was destroyed by the vile disease; my tongue and throat having great holes caused by it. I then commenced taking Swift Specific (S. S. S.,) and in a few months I was entirely cured, and to this great medicine do I attribute my recovery. This was over two years ago, and I have had no return, or any effects of the disease since, and my skin is to-day as smooth and clean as anybody's.

Six bottles of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured me of a horriable attack of boils that had broken out all over my body, and from which I could get no relief. I feel that if it was not for your great medicine I would be in my grave to-day.

THE CAUCASIAN.

Entered according to Postal Laws at Clinton, N. C., as second class mail matter.

CLINTON, N. C.—MAY 22, 1890.

The crop prospects are now promising, may they continue.

We should all examine any petition we sign very carefully, often we are too hasty in signing our names to what we have not investigated.

The Methodist Conference at St. Louis has elected for Bishops Rev. Dr. A. G. Haygood, of Alabama, and Rev. Dr. O. P. Fitzgerald, of Tennessee.

The Teachers Assembly at Morehead will be largely attended, the program is "a feast of reason." We are in receipt of a copy.

Butterworth's speech has caused quite a sensation all over the country, it was a surprise to both parties, the Republicans can be prepared for greater surprises than this.

We acknowledge an invitation to attend the closing exercises of the Wilson Collegiate Institute, Wilson, N. C. The annual address will be delivered by Hon. F. M. Simmons, Tuesday evening June 3rd 1890

Ex-Speaker John G. Carlisle has been elected to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Beck. So Kentucky's ablest son continues to represent her in the Senate.

"I can name upon my ten fingers," said Republican Congressman Ben Butterworth, in his speech on the McKinley bill, "men whose combined profits in the last decade have exceeded those of all the agriculturalists of any State in this Union."

Edmunds and Ingalls are said to be sponsors for Vice President Morton. when he is in doubt as to a ruling he looks for a nod from either. Morton may know how to run a bank or saloon but in his present position, he is a failure.

The North Carolina Farmer, a monthly agricultural magazine, which has been published by J. H. Ennis since 1876, has been changed to a weekly, and is called the Southern Farmer. It contains much interesting and valuable matter pertaining to the farm and household.

The Radicals were anxious to have the negro emancipated and enfranchised, because they thought there was a big political plum in it for them, but finding the plum sour they are now trying to have him disfranchised by being ommitted from the eleventh census, thus depriving the South of a part of her present representation in Congress. The New York Star claims to have discovered a plot by Quay to this effect.

Hon. Thos. G. Skinner says he thinks some measure will pass Congress this session for the relief of the farmer.

He thinks that the farmer Republicans of the West, combined with the farmer Democrat of the South, have influence enough to compel the politicians in Congress to legislate in their interests. Petitions have poured in from every district in North Carolina looking to this object, and have been presented by every member of our delegation.

A CONVERTED REPUBLICAN MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Last week Ben Butterworth, a Republican, delivered the speech of the season in the House. It was on the tariff question, and he tore loose from party traces and condemned the tariff as unjust and ruinous to the farmer. He said that he would rather resign his seat than depart from his belief on that question.

The Republicans frowned and scowled, and a few of the bolder and more spirited men tried to puzzle him with questions which would put him in a false position on the record. But Mr. Butterworth hit them back one by one with such force that they were silenced.

Let the Alliance continue its crusade against the tariff and national banking system. It is already reaping rewards for its labors.

Under "Forum of Public Opinion" will be found a long article headed "An Error," from "K," who takes the clipping about Railroad Commissions etc., in our last issue taken from the Advance, as his text. But it seems to us that "K" himself is in error in that he misinterprets the Advance's meaning. All that "K" says and the quotations he makes from the Constitution to show that a commission could not levy a tax on corporations would be admitted, we of course suppose, by the Advance without argument, and we take it that the clipping from the Advance conveys no such meaning. When it says that the Aycock Investigating Committee forced two railroads to pay taxes, we interpreted it to mean that they agreed to pay taxes under pressure of public opinion and the evident determination of the public to keep up the investigations till the people should know something of their business and management, and that the concession on the part of the railroads simply shows that they had rather pay tax than be further investigated. This is not the first committee appointed to investigate their affairs and they knew that it would not be the last one unless they made satisfactory concessions. "K" says that the railroads agreed to pay tax because it was right that they should do so, since they expected the State to protect their property. This simple rule of equity is very true and would have applied for all time and we are very sorry that they have just now discovered it, and this failure they could now remedy by paying back conscience money also. But a commission would have a different and very legitimate object, and to designate that, we will ask "K" two questions:

Have the railroads not the power to discriminate in favor of or against any place or party at their own sweet personal wills?

Is it safe for a State to put a power, unrestricted, that can be used to terrible detriment, in the hands of private parties, even if this power had never been abused?

This shows the province of a commission, it is to be a check on the weakness of man holding such power, simply a vigil to see that simple justice is done, and if the State cannot do this, then it has created a creature greater than itself, and if greater than the State then to a certain extent the State is in its power.

The Washington correspondent of the State Chronicle says:

The Post of this morning has an editorial notice of the fact that Hon. Wharton J. Green will be a candidate for Congress in the third N. C. district. Col. Green, Mrs. Green, and their daughter, Mrs. Pembroke Jones, have a host of friends here who would be delighted to have him re-elected. He has powerful political and social influence here which would be largely increased by a long Congressional term. The State never sent a more faithful and efficient representative here.

Representatives Roger Mills and Oates have written strong letters to their constituents condemning the H. R. bill 7162 and Senate bill 2806, in reference to building sub-treasury's for storing grain, cotton &c.

MOORE FALLS INTO LINE.

(Fayetteville Observer.)

The Carthage Blade, published in Moore county, indorses all that has been said of our worthy county-man, Col. Wharton J. Green, for the nomination for Congress in this district, and in fitting terms adds:

"No doubt Cumberland will be delighted to honor her illustrious son, for by his upright, honorable character, faithful performance of public trusts, deep interest in the welfare of his constituents while previously serving this district in Congress, not only reflected honor upon the third district but upon the entire State. We have no doubt that Col. Green is decidedly the ablest man in the field, and we know that he would make an excellent Representative, judging the future by the past. Who does this county favor for Congress? Our columns are open for a discussion of the matter"

The many friends of Col. Green are enthusiastic over the bright outlook for his success at the approaching convention.

point that we find the following in Article V, section 7 of the Constitution. It reads:

"Every Act of the General Assembly levying a tax shall state the special object to which it is to be applied, and it shall be applied to no other purpose."

This section is quoted to show how careful the Constitution was, not to allow even special taxes to be levied by any other power save the General Assembly. Even when the people vote to tax themselves as they sometimes do to build railroads, &c., then the General Assembly must first pass the bill to allow them to do so.

Mr. Editor, the Advance has fallen into an error which may mislead the people by making them believe that a Railroad Commission could tax the Railroads or even have anything to do with taxing them. So careful is the Constitution on the taxing power that it says: The Revenue bill—(that is the bill to tax)—must originate in the House of Commons. The Senate cannot even originate a Revenue bill.

The only exception to the rule that the Legislature alone can tax is in the case where the Constitution allows the County Commissioners to levy a tax for certain county expenses, and this is only because the counties are a part of the State Government. In one sense of the word each county is like a little State, and requires a certain amount of money to run its county government, but even in the case of County Commissioner they are restricted by the Constitution.

The article taken from The Advance says "the investigating committee" forced two railroads to pay taxes. Let me call your attention to the latter part of the act of the Legislature appointing that committee. It says:

"The committee shall report the testimony taken by them and shall report such legislation or other proceedings as in their opinion may be requisite to compel said companies to pay their lawful taxes; and shall have power, and is hereby instructed to sit after the adjournment of this session of the General Assembly and make report by bill or otherwise to the next General Assembly."

Thus you see the only power conferred upon the committee is to "report by bill or otherwise to the next General Assembly." Why? Because no other power could tax but the General Assembly. I believe that every corporation in the State ought to pay taxes; but it is idle to talk about a Railroad Commission having anything to do with the matter. No power on earth save the Legislature can control this matter of taxation. And there are some railroads in the State which even the Legislature cannot tax because their charters exempt them from taxation. Among this number is the Wilmington and Weldon. Although they are exempt, yet out of their own free will they come forward and say they are willing to pay taxes to the State. It is wrong to say that they "were forced to do so," when it is an error so to state.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided that the State cannot tax the Wilmington and Weldon road. Any one who cares to read this decision can find it in 13th Wallace's United States Supreme Court Reports, page 568.

But while they are perfectly protected by this decision, yet of their own free will and accord they come forward and say they are willing to be taxed. If the question is asked why they do this I can only answer in their own language, when they say "If any uprising were to take place and their property were threatened, they would call upon the State for protection, as in many sections in this day of strikes, &c., much valuable property is often laid waste. If then they claim the State's protection, it is but right they should share the burden along with all other people who desire protection." When people desire to be generous it is wrong to impute other motives to them. There is one strange fact in connection with this question of railroad taxation to many people, and it is this, that those who oppose a Railroad Commission have been foremost in saying that all railroads ought to pay taxes, and have even voted for ills in the Legislature looking to the taxation of all corporations not only Railroads but Telegraph and Express Companies. The reason for this is because they believe all should share the burdens of State alike.

THE MONETIZATION OF LAND.

BY F. B. COOPER.

No. 4.

That which we call money has in all ages and nations been based upon one of three principles or ideas or more accurately upon a combination of two or more of them. These are: 1st Real value. 2nd. Representative value, and 3rd. Fiat value; and these principles either singly or in combination underlie every system of exchanges or currency. Trade based upon real value alone is pure barter and exist to a very limited extent in civilized countries and no currency has ever been or can ever be based upon this principle alone. The nearest approach to it is a metalic currency. When a man exchanges his cotton for gold he does not proceed upon the principle that so many ounces of gold are equal in real value to so many pounds of cotton, but observing what value has been stamped upon the gold by authority of law he takes it at that value without once thinking of ascertaining the weight. Representative value is the principle upon which paper currency is supposed to be based. A ten dollar bill or note is of very little intensic value but because it is supposed to represent ten dollas of real value somewhere as in the coffers of a bank or the government treasury, it passes current and performs all the functions of money.

Fiat money as it is called is that which does not possess intrinsic value and neither represents nor professes to represent real value. It is simply and purely a promise to pay. The green back currency of this county was purely fiat money and the government bonds of to day are the same. It is very clear that a currency based upon fiat value inasmuch as it costs practically nothing to produce it, can be supplied by the government to its citizens at an exceedingly low rate of interest, and it is equally clear that, as such a currency will perform all the functions of money as efficiently as the very expensive gold and silver, it is the duty of government to provide it in sufficient abundance for the needs of the people. Indeed the government has provided just such a currency as this for the use of the very rich. Bonds each of large value are issued and with these such men as Gould and Vanderbilt can buy and sell railroads &c but an ordinary man can never own one. Nay so far are the very rich from paying any interest upon their peculiar currency that they are permitted to charge the government interest.

Let us suppose the government to issue to us through a national bank, a ten dollar bill which is nothing more than a note by which the government or the bank promises to pay the holder ten dollars. This note passes from the bank into the hands of a private citizen, who gives his note with abundant security in exchange for it. We will say that he keeps it for two years and then presents it at the bank for payment. He receives just ten dollars and nothing at all is said about interest. But when he comes to pay his ten dollar note to the bank, he is required to pay, not only the ten dollars as principle, but eight per cent interest for ten years or in all $18.00 Who has got the $8? The Bank. Then the rich grow richer at the expense of the poor.

We hear much said of the rapidity with which the United States is paying off its national debt. This government has paid since the war by means of cruel taxation imposed almost exclusively upon the industrial classes a sum which baffles comprehension and almost defies computation and yet, in real truth, the national debt is as large now as it was the day the war ended. It will take more bales of cotton, more bushels of wheat, more pounds of pork and more of anything which the farmer produces to discharge the national debt to day than would have been required to do so in 1865. The criminal contraction of the currency and excessive interest is the ground-work of most of the evils under which the industrial classes are laboring and the national banking system is responsible for the whole thing. With a currency based upon the monetization of land or free banking made safe, or with a currency issued direct from the government in quantities sufficient to supply the needs of the people, there is no earthly reason why any one by giving sufficient security could not obtain all the money which he might need for not more than three per cent interest.

Sunday School Convention.

It is the earnest desire of the State Sunday School Executive Committee to have all the Sunday School workers in Sampson County organized into a County Sunday School Convention. I have been urgently requested by H. N. Snow, Secretary of that committee to effect an organization of the county. In order to do this I hereby request all superintendents of Sabbath Schools in the county of what ever denomination to send me their names and post offices immediately, that I may be able to correspond with them in regard to time and place of meeting and other important matters, please do not neglect this call superintendents.

charge could have gone forth, except it is a revival of the old charge of the News and Observer based upon the passage of a resolution by a Pitt county sub-alliance "that they wanted better public schools or none," simply meaning that they intended to improve the system if in their power. Which charges were replied to at the time by Mr. E. A. Moye, of Greenville, N. C., and declined publication by in the N. and O. I shall endeavor to get a copy of the entire correspondence and forward to you at an early day with a hope that you will set us a right with the education upon whom we greatly rely."

From the State Secretary of the Alliance, Mr. E. C. Beddingfield, a similar letter was received by Mr. Britton. In the course of a denial of the charge, the letter reads this: "no doubt many of the enemies of the order are glad to circulate the report, hoping to create an impression that the reform movement begun by the farmers and laborers of this country is the effect of ignorance and selfishness. The truth is that a large majority of the members of the alliance realize the fact that the only hope of the liberties of the people being restored and preserved lies in the education of the masses. I trust you will use your influence to stop this infamous rumor."

Finally Mr. Branson thus sets himself right in the last issue of the "School Journal." "The full text of my articles will show that I stated the farmers position to be reform or abolishment of the public schools, a fragmentary quotation gives Mr. Harrell (who in a letter to the School Journal had called Mr. Branson to account for his statement.—Ed.) Opportunity to characterize me as "wholly false" in my statement in both my recent articles. I distinctly stated that the Southern farmer was the best friend of the doctrines of popular education we had; and that we must look to this class of our citizens for the public reforms which are so lamentably needed in the South.

Here are the resolutions referred to in my recent articles, as found in the Progressive Farmer of Jan. 21st 1890.

Resolved; "That we, the Farmers' Alliance of Pitt county, N. C., recognizing the inefficiency of the present public school system; denounce it as oppressive, unjust and iniquitous.

Resolved: "That we demand that our representetives in the next general assembly use their utmost endeavors to abolish or effect a reform in the present public school system.

Resolved: "That we ask the county alliances throughout the State to unite with us in correcting such pernicious and unstatesmanlike legislation, etc."

We fully endorses the statement that the alliance believes in the education of the masses and in concluding this article make the following extract from the declaration of priciples of the order.

"Profoundly impressed that we, the farmers' alliance, united by the strong and faithful ties of finanical and home interests, shou'd set forth our declaration of intentions, we therefore resolve: 1. To labor for the education of the agricultural classes, in the science of economical government, in a strictly non partisan spirit."

Mr. Livingstone, the national Lecturer of the Farmers' Alliance append before the ways and means committee of Congress last week in behalf of the farmers asking for remedial legislation. He said there need be no misapprehention concerning the objects of the Alliance. It was not seeking to displace the ruling political parties. The sub-treasury bill had nothing to do with the tariff. The farmers asked that the sub-treasury bill be passed. Fifty-eight homes of farmers had been sold in Connecticut in one day this week. Relief was demanded, and the farmers knew how to get it. * * * *

If Congress refused to endorse the sub-treasury law, he said it should remove the restrictions hedging in the national banking system. The sub treasury plan gave the farmer a chance to escape the speculator by allowing him to deposit his crops in the sub-treasury at any time, and spared him selling at stated seasons. If the sub-treasury bill were passed, there would not be a bucket shop left in the United States. There need be no fear that the bill would cause the farmers to form a trust.

A writer in the "Southern Alliance Farmer," says that for the first time in twenty years the farmers are looking up—heads hoisted and tails over the dash board, which means they are determined upon not only a reform in the financial condition of National and State government, which is draining the life blood of agriculture, but the suppression of the wicked combinations and trusts afflicting the people.

Messenger J. E. Brown, of the U. S. Fish Commission, placed over a half a million one-day old shad in Six Runs at the railroad bridge near Elliot, yesterday evening. The fish were hatched Tuesday in the hatchery at Washington, D. C., superintended by Mr. S. G. Worth, and were shipped at 4 o'clock yesterday morning in 20 ten gallon cans. The fish were sent at the request of Maj. McClammy.

—Judge Graves while at Sampson Court remarked to a friend that "during his entire experience on the Bench (about twelve years) he had never seen a more respectable looking set of men summoned on a special venire than the one summoned in the Avery Butler case, (120 men.) Considering the fact that four deputies were sent in as many different parts of the county the list thus furnished must have represented the citizenship of the county very fairly."

—There will be a special meeting of Hiram Lodge, No. 98 on Thursday night, June 5th, for the purpose of conferring the Third or Master Mason Degree. Past Master, Samuel Northrop, and others will be present from Wilmington, N. C. All Master Masons in good standing are invited. Mr. Northrop will remain over on Friday and be present and give instruction and confer degrees in the Royal Arch Chapter, recently organized here.

—THE CAUCASIAN greatly appreciates the efforts that its friends put forth to increase its support and usefulness. On one day this week two of our friends secured for us, each, the name of a new subscriber, accompanied by the cash. Both of these new subscribers are strangers to us, one lives in Davie county, the other in Fayetteville. Their attention was simply called to the merits of the paper by our friends Messrs. W. E. Bass and Thos. Owens respectively. If all of our friends would kindly assist us in the same way we would soon have the 3,000 subscribers that we are striving for.

—An esteemed subscriber of Goldsboro in a private letter a few days since says: "THE CAUCASIAN" is ever a most welcome visitor and is always read with a great deal of interest. Mrs.—has threatened several times to write and compliment you on your "Womans Sphere" but says that she cant find words sufficient to express her high appriecia tion of it. In fact we are very much disappointed if the paper ever fails to come. Well you may say, "show your appreciation by remitting amount due me," and every one of your 1700 subscribers should do so. We are proud of the paper and consider it one of the best weeklies in the State.

—We understand that some of the friends and relatives of the late Mr. J. M. Williford are displeased at the sobriquet, "Blue Dick," which was applied to him in a friendly and good natured way while on the campaign in the county a few years since for the Legislature. We were at school at that time and did not know Mr. Williford. Upon hearing if his death we inquired about him and was told by one of his friends, who spoke very pleasantly about him, that if we would use the nickname, as above, that every one would know to whom we referred. We are never intentionally disrespectful to the living, and far be it from us to so ever appear to the memory of the dead.

TAYLOR'S BRIDGE,

During the storm last Friday evening lightening struck a large oak tree in 10 or 12 feet of Mr. J. A. McArthur's kitchen, tearing the tree almost literally to pieces. The kitchen caught fire, but Mr. McArthur, being present extinguished it before much damage was done. Mrs. McArthur and her little daughter were badly stunned, one of the sons, who had just come from the field with his horse and plow and gone under a shelter was also shocked. The horse took fright and dashed off with the plow, tearing it to pieces.

Mr. Willie O. McArthur, son of our esteemed citizen V. J. McArthur, Esq., has accepted a position in the machine shops of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley R. R. Co., at Fayetteville. He left Friday the 16th to take active charge of his duties in that capacity.

A new industry has commenced to spring up in this township, in the mining line.

Mr. M. S. Merritt dug a live hog from the ground near this place the other day; a pleasing feature is that ground hogs evidently make the best sausage.

The rain falls impartially upon the just and upon the unjust in the same manner, the pale-moon-beams that quickens the lover's vows creeps through the cracks in the hen-house and shows the "midnight naturalist where the fattest pullet is roosting."

NEWTON GROVE.

Mr. Editor, Newton Grove township is hard to beat, the people are working with a will, the prospects are fair now for a good crop, corn looking well, good stands of cotton, some of the farmers are chopping out and siding their cotton. You may know they are working with a will, I walked up to one my neighbors the other day and what do you think, I saw the old woman was a plowing the old man, I was surprised knowing he had a good mare and mule, I soon saw the cause, the mare had a fine colt and he told the old woman it would never do for the plow to stop so she hitched him in; he is very tractable, works well. He is a noble old horse, he is six feet and four inches, the father of sixteen children, I think he has concluded that he is one of the old patriarchs and submits to most anything. Says he expects to have at least two dozen children.

Your paper is growing in favor of the people. ZEB.

SOUTH CLINTON.

The ice-cream and strawberry supper at Boykin's Chapel last Friday evening was quite a success—an abundance of many things delicious. We understand that the feast is to be repeated.

MINGO.

We are glad to know that Prof. M. Butler, the enterprising editor of THE CAUCASIAN will deliver the annual address at Clement High School Friday May the 30.

Rev. Lundy Lee, who has been very sick is mending slowly.

Look out for a Bill Arp of Mingo in a few weeks.

Glad to hear Capt. J. L. Autry is improving. MINOR.

TURKEY.

The body of Mrs. Dr. J. R. Marable, a most estimable lady, who died last Sunday, was interred in the old family cemetery at Elliot, last Monday evening. The funeral ceremonies were conducted by Rev. P. M. McIntire, of Faison.

Miss Minnie Bumgardner of Virginia is visiting Miss Florence Faison at Elliot.

HONEYCUTTS.

The closing exercises of Salem High School takes place to-day and to-morrow. We expect a treat from that able and learned scholar, Prof. B. F. Grady, who delivers the annual address on Friday.

Personals.

Messrs. W. G. Hubbard and D. M. Partrick returned Monday from the centennial council of the Episcopal Diocese. They were perfectly charmed with their trip.

Mr. L. A. Bethune, formerly on THE CAUCASIAN staff, but now from Manly, arrived in town Tuesday night. His many friends were delighted to see and give him a cordial welcome.

Prof. B. F. Grady, than whom North Carolina has no more astute, learned and scholarly gentleman, will be in Clinton to-night, the guest of Mr. J. S. Bizzell, on his way to Salem High School, at Huntley, where he delivers the annual address to-morrow.

Duplin Items.

(Regular Correspondence.)

Mr. H. Y. Moore, (Pete) formerly of this county, but now of Goldsboro, came down to Kenansville the 14th of this month, and carried home with him, as Mrs. Moore, one of our fairest young ladies, Miss Anna Brown was the lady. Pete has our congratulations.

It will be remembered that our county jail was destroyed about a year ago, since which time we have been using the Wayne county jail for our criminals, but we are now pleased to say that ground has been broken, and a nice brick structure will soon be finished to take the place of our old "wooden hut," and all that we now need, is a railroad from Warsaw, via Kenansville, to make our county flourish and we hope that the progressive W. & W. Co., will soon run a road from Warsaw, connecting with the Clinton branch, to Jacksonville Onslow county, connecting with boats &c, at that place, thereby furnishing an outlet for one of the richest sections of Eastern Carolina.

Our Kenansville "pleasure loving" people will have the pleasure of attending an entertainment on the night of the 30th inst., given by the Warsaw Dramatic Club, for the benefit of the new Methodist church at Warsaw. We bespeak for the club a full house, as the cause for which they are working, is a noble one.

Mr. D. S. Kennedy, a native of our county, but who has for sometime past been a citizen of Arizona, has returned to the land of his nativity, looking, "fat and pleasant." The "Wild West" has many attractions but there is no place like home to the average "tar heel." He says we know nothing of hot weather, as he has seen the heat register 120 degrees, in the shade at noon for months stretch. We welcome him back.

The shipment of berries, peas, beans &c from the towns along the railroad is simply immence and our truckers are jubilent, and even tho' despondent at the late frosts, they now think they will come out even, and if we can only have a good crop season, Duplin will come to the front.

Hon. B. F. Grady, of our county will be a candidate before the Congressional Convention, for the Democratic nomination, and we ask our citizens to remember this at the proper time. Too much cannot be said of his great learning and experience, and if nominated will make an able Representation, and he would be elected beyond any doubt.
CORRESPONDENT.

Closing Exercises of Hayne Academy.

On last Friday, the 16th, a large audience assembled at Hayne Academy to witness the closing exercises of the Institution. The entire forenoon was spent in rendering the program. The little folks came first and did excellently well their parts, speaking in clear, distinct tones, which showed that much attention had been given to their training. Two essays, by the Misses Coopers were deserving of special praise. The declamations and essays were all good, and it is hardly fair to particularize a few of them. But "Adieu" recited by Miss Hall was too well and feelingly rendered not to receive special mention. When dinner was announced the assemblage repaired to an abundant spread of good things. After dinner the annual address was delivered by Senator E. W. Kerr, of Clinton. He called the attention of the young to the many advantages now offered them in the way of getting an education. Among other things, Mr. Kerr stated that Sampson county has now eleven or twelve High Schools. The address was interesting and instructive alike, and Mr. Kerr fully sustained his reputation as one of the most easy and eloquent speakers of Eastern North Carolina. Mr. Isham Royal was next called upon and responded in a short, but pointed and practical talk on education. Mr. D. A. Cooper was also called upon and made a pleasant talk of fifteen minutes, and said among other things that the people of Little Coharie were pleased with the management of Prof. Brewer, and would keep the school going. Prof. Brewer next arose and thanked his patrons for their hearty support, and spoke of his pleasant relations with them. As to whether the school would continue after this term, he said, was in the hands of the trustees. Prof. Brewer has done a good work and is ot be congratulated on his success.

Glenwood High School.

(Special Correspondence.)

GLENWOOD, N. C., May 17, '90.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather an immense audience attended the commencement exercises of Glenwood High School on the 16th inst. The young men acquitted themselves with much credit, displaying much ability, not found in ordinary schools.

The exercises at night, though cut short by the rain, were enjoyed by all. Especially noticeable was the "negro minstrels," gotten up by the boys, who kept the audience in a roar of laughter for an hour.

Too much cannot be said in commendation of the annual address by C. B. Aycock, Esq. He chose for his subject one that could not fail to interest all, viz: "Money Getting and the Proper Uses of Money." To say that his address was good and was enjoyed by all would hardly give that talented orator justice.

Mr. E. B. Grantham won the scholarship prize; Mr. T. J. Lassiter, the prize on English Literature and Mr. W. W. Cole, the prize on best declamation.

With the parting song "God Be With You," closed the commencement exercises of the most prosperous term in the history of Glenwood Academy.

Thus another Red Letter Day is added to the great page, back to which our people and students will look for many a day. VIDI.

"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven."

A FINE SERIES OF SERMONS

On the Six Fundamental Doctrines of Christ.

TWICE A DAY FOR A WEEK THE REV. MR. ARNOLD DELIVERS STIRRING AND FORCIBLE SERMONS TO LARGE AND ATTENTIVE AUDIENCES.

The fourth of Mr. Arnold's sermons upon the principles of the doctrine of Christ was

"LAYING ON OF HANDS."

He said:

The first two of these fundamental doctrines of Christ as stated in the first and second verses of the sixth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews are the pre-requisites for the rites and sacraments of the Church. They are spiritual affections—"Repentand Faith." The third and fourth of these principles are two external visible ordinances, or means of grace. Two more there are representing results and consequences, the "Resurrection of the Dead" and Eternal Judgment. Any one reading these verses must observe that the enumeration here made follows the natural and logical orders. The pre-requisites, the means of grace, and the results and consequences of employing or rejecting them. As regards five of these principles there is general acceptance, as universal perpetual, and essential, but in modern times one of the six stones on which the Christian Church was founded has been removed by some. Some who do not reject the doctrine of laying on of hands, yet deny to it the characteristics of a principle by claiming it to have here a temporary rite administered by the apostles for the purpose of bestowing miraculous powers, or they say it has reference to ordination. But principles are perpetual, such was not the supposed apostles' right, and principles are universal such was neither this supposed rite, nor ordination. So either the apostle, who placed this ordinance in this brief list of fundamental principles, erred in so classifying this rite, or else he had reference to some universal, perpetual and essential ordinance. Such a sacramental rite we find in the Apostolic Church, which was also faithfully, universally and perpetually observed in the Church down to the time of the Reforation as one of the essentials of Christian religion. We have also the testimony of the ancient fathers of the Church to the fact that the laying on of hands here referred to was what is commonly called confirmation among us. Let us now, by a brief study of the history of the early Church as preserved for us in the "Acts of the Apostles" to learn what was the original character of this rite, by whom administered and for what purpose. In the eighth chapter we are informed that Philip, a recently ordained Deacon went down to Samaria and preached Christ gladly received the Word of God as spoken by Philip, he received them into the Church by baptism. As soon as the Apostles who had not yet left Jerusalem, heard that Samaria had received the Word, they sent unto them two of their number, Peter and John, to bestow upon them the gift of God's Holy Spirit, which the deacon Philip had not power to confer. It could not have been a matter of small consequence whether or not the rite were administered, else, certainly Peter and John would not have gone at once so great a distance to lay their hands upon these persons. From this incident we learn that only those of Apostolic powers could confer the gift of the Holy Ghost in confirmation. Turn to the tenth chapter of the Acts. When St. Peter, at the command of his glorified Master went down to Cesarea to open the door of the Church to the Gentiles, he was convinced by the out-pouring of the Holy Ghost, while yet speaking that those outside the privileges of the chosen people were yet chosen of God unto salvation. After these Gentiles had received in the same manner the same gift which had been bestowed upon the Apostles and believing Jews at Pentecost, St. Peter commanded them all to be baptized but did not lay his hands on them thus proving by the very omission that the rite was performed for the purpose of confering the Holy Ghost. In the nineteenth chapter of the Acts we read that St. Paul found at Ephesus a number of converts who had received only the baptism of John the Baptist. Upon enquiry he learned that these Christians had not received the Holy Ghost, since they had believed, not only this, but did not even know of the existence of Holy Ghost. After they were baptised in the name of the Lord Jesus, the Apostle laid his hands on them and they received the gift of the Holy Ghost. Passing out of the inspired writings of the New Testament, we may trace from the very first down through all the ages of the Church, the continuance of the ancient rite administered in the same manner and by the same order of the ministry. Cyprian, bishop of Carthage, in the third century, states: "The baptised were brought to the chief pastors of the Church, that by their prayers and the laying on of their hands they may receive the Holy Ghost." St. Jerome says: "This is the usage of our churches: The bishop goes forth and makes a tour, in order to lay his hands and invoke the Holy Ghost on those who have been baptised by our priests and deacons. Until the Reformation, by confirmation, every Christian made the profession of his faith, and thus received the gift of the Holy Ghost; and to-day, this rite is performed upon fully five-sixths of those who become Christians. May we not by what we have shown claim for this rite the characteristics of a principle, that it is perpetual universal and essential. We are not informed of any suplemental revelation from Christ dispensing with this rite, or substituting for it any other means of confering the Holy Ghost. But some object that this early rite conferred this gift with signs following, and that, in as much as, no such evidences attend confirmation now, it is, therefore, without effect and useless. Such a declamation proves too much. Jesus said: "These signs shall follow them which believe; In my name that shall cast out devils, they shall speak with tongues, &c. Shall we say there are no believers now, because those who profess faith in Christ cannot perform these signs? Those who were baptised by Philip worked miracles; has baptism become without effect because those who are baptised in our times cannot do the same. The time of miracles is past, but still the Spirit of God is bestowed, and works, in the sou's of the faithful, their regeneration and salvation through those means and instrumentalities which are ordained in the Church.

IN MEMORIAM.

It hath pleased God to take unto himself one of His purest, His truest and his best of servants, Mrs. P. S. M. Marable, wife of Rich'd Marable, M. D. She died at her home in Turkey township last Sunday at two o'clock, P. M. and was buried the following evening in the family cemetery near Elliot.

Mrs. Marable's maiden name was Susan M. Bryan. She was born and raised near Taylor's Bridge and educated at Floral Hall, Robinson Co. On November 16th, 1847, she became the wife of Col. F. J. Faison, who was killed at the battle of Cold Harbor, 1822. On 25th of July, 1866, she married Dr. Marable, who survives her.

Mrs. Marable's life was beautiful and good. She harmed none, she treated all with kindness, candor and charity. Her acquaintances and neighbors universally speak well of her, saying that "there never lived a better woman." She belonged to "the salt of the earth." Early in life she connected herself with God's church on earth and until the end came was a faithful exponent of living, acting, trusting christianity. A city set on a hill cannot be hid and notwithstanding her retiring, modest disposition, the glow of her honest, true and faithful heart made itself deeply felt among her large circle of friends. Her last illness was unusually painful and trying. This she bore with christsan courage and resignation, and at last quietly passed over the river, where she doth now "rest under the shade of the trees," whose leaves are for the healing of the nations.

Mrs. Marable leaves six children, who, with her husband, have our deepest sympathy for the loss sustained, which, however, of coming joys when this life is over and the better life begun.

A Sad Condition.

I suffered for five years with the worst form of Blood Poison, during which time I was attended by the best physicians I could find, and tried numbers of proprietary medicines without any beneficial results. I continued to grow worse all this time, until my whole system was destroyed by the vile disease; my tongue and throat having great holes caused by it. I then commenced taking Swift Specific (S. S. S.,) and in a few months I was entirely cured, and to this great medicine do I attribute my recovery. This was over two years ago, and I have had no return, or any effects of the disease since, and my skin is to-day as smooth and clean as anybody's.

Boils All Over His Body.

Six bottles of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured me of a horriable attack of boils that had broken out all over my body, and from which I could get no relief. I feel that if it was not for your great medicine I would be in my grave to-day.

DEMORESTS.

Last month we visited Washington through the pages of Demorest's Family Magazine, and enjoyed the very interesting views of the exterior of the White House and its surroundings. This month, in the June number of this popular Magazine (which has just arrived,) we enter the Executive Mansion, and are treated to a ramble through its corridors, its executive and private apartments. We thus participate in the special favor shown to Demorest's Magazine, as we are introduced to many features not usually seen by the general public. The White House has never before been so fully and beautifully illustrated; and the numerous handsome pictures which the article contains, including portraits of "Baby McKee" Mrs. Harrison, and the four generations now residing in the White House, make it especially interesting to every American father, mother, and child. This number also contains a picture of four of "mother's darling. "Out for an Airing," which is a superb water-color, equal in design and execution to those selling at a high price at the art stores; "Athletics for Women" is also finely illustrated; and "The Lady Tramp" will no doubt start many of "Our Girls" off on that heathful exercise, for it tells them just what to do and what to wear when doing it. All the other Departments are full to overflowing with entertaining and helpful matter, and the stories are particularly good. It is certainly 20 cents worth. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

Robert Louis Stevenson writes to Robert Bonner's Sons from Sydney, New South Wales, that his health has greatly improved, that he is in good writing condition, and that he is at work on his story for the New York Ledger, which he hopes to complete within a reasonable time. Mr. Stevenson likes the story very much himself, and has become deeply interested in the fascinating plot which he is weaving. He says: "It has something of a Monte Christo flavor, being the tale of an abominable crime and a singular vengeance. I have great hopes of the tale; the the incidents are strange and so are the characters." This has the true Stevenson flavor, and smacks of "Hyde and Jekyll." The public will await the appearance of this story with eagerness and great expectations.

SHALL WE SPELL ACCORDING TO SOUND?

Advocates of the phonetic system of spelling are making an effort to have the United States Government adopt their orthographic innovations in all Government publications and in the printed proceedings of Congress.

They would have words spelled as follows: Altho, shal, filosofy, buro, rumatism, numonia, fite, nefu, curnel, nu, ben, be4, chuse, frase, situng Theoretically this phonetic idea is correct; practically neither readers nor writers will have it. Language is developed by usage, and orthography comes to us in the same way. Future generations may look back upon the spelling of to day with the same semi-amused feeling with which we consider the peculiar orthography of Chaucer and Spenser, but there is no reason to believe that the phonetic system will be any nearer acceptance then than it is now.

Meanwhile, we smile at the effectation of the few periodicals that tentatively venture upon the new practice, but we feel that we are willing to let a little of the so-called reform go a great ways. There is no reason why the Government should enlist itself in support of the proposed changes.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

The time for reasoning is before we have approached near enough to the forbidden fruit to look at and admire it.

We don't wonder that some people who try to waltz get discouraged. They are constantly having reverses.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.
